FINAL PROGRAM

www.eurocto2016.com
Dear Colleagues,
Dear Friends,

Even in the era of advanced skills of operators of chronic total occlusions (CTO) combined with new sophisticated technologies and devices, percutaneous coronary interventions (PCI) of CTO remain challenging. These procedures are technically complex. Thus, the risks of failure and complications are highly dependent on skills of the operator and vary from study to study. There are also some controversies, fortunately year by year less frequent, mainly due to sharing the knowledge in the cardiology community, creating appropriate indications for CTO revascularization.

Education and training in revascularization of CTOs is crucial. There is a need for special training to achieve high procedural success, the need for patience, discipline and long practice hours. Really important in the beginning period is learning from masters and experienced cardiologists. Sharing knowledge, expertise, tricks, handling difficulties and opinions in dealing with complications is very valuable even for experienced operators. In the meantime, benefit gained by CTO intervention training is worthwhile for interventional cardiologists, gained experience with different new technologies and techniques can positively affect daily activity in routine PCI.

EuroCTO Club overall and its members have been involved in teaching and training for many years. In our opinion the goal should be to increase the total number of patients offered a CTO PCI rather than focus on marginal increases in success rates in expert and specialized centres. Thereby, a greater total number of patients will be treated, leading to a reduction in symptoms and an improved quality of life and most importantly to improvements in the prognosis for a much broader cohort of CTO patients. This is one of the main objectives of this year’s edition of The Experts Live.

We are proud to hereby announce that the Experts “Live” CTO Workshop arranged by Euro CTO Club will be organized in Krakow, Poland, on 30 September and 1 October 2016.

In this workshop, we aim to gather masters of CTO in Cracow and create a program that serves as a structured platform for training, updating and interchange of knowledge. The scientific program consists of basic techniques, as well as procedures requiring advanced skills. We hope that live and recorded cases will give the great opportunity to get involved with any level of CTO intervention, sharing skills and knowledge, meeting experienced masters and having the chance to improve your skills in complex cases.

We look forward to meeting all of you in Krakow.
